1. PURPOSE OF BILL

The main object of the Bill is to amend the Basic Conditions of Employment Act, 1997 (Act No. 75 of 1997) (“the Act”), to adjust basic conditions of employment and to improve the implementation of the Act.

2. OBJECTS OF BILL

2.1 Clause 1 of the Bill amends the definition of “employment law” in section 1 of the Act to reflect the enactment of new labour legislation since the BCEA came into effect.

2.2 Clause 2 of the Bill amends section 8 of the Act to clarify the meaning of the terms “day” and “daily” for sections 12 to 16. The clarification should prevent abuse of arrangements for averaging working time.

2.3 Clause 3 of the Bill amends section 10 of the Act to—

- * remove the daily limit on overtime in section 10(1) and add a new section 10(1A) which provides that an agreement to work overtime may not result in an employee working more than a total of 12 hours (both ordinary and overtime) on any day;
- * enable an employer and a trade union to conclude a collective agreement by extending the weekly limit on permissible overtime to 15 hours for two months in any 12-month period.

2.4 Clause 4 of the Bill amends section 27 of the Act to rectify the incorrect reference in section 27(5) to subsection (1) instead of subsection (2).

2.5 Clause 5 of the Bill amends the Act by inserting a new section 34A to oblige employers to pay over deductions from employees’ salary in respect of benefit funds and the employer’s contributions to these funds within 7 days of the deduction being made or the end of the period for which the contribution is made, respectively.

2.6 Clause 6 of the Bill amends section 35 of the Act to give the Minister, after consulting the ECC, the power to determine by notice in the Gazette whether particular types of payment should be included in, or excluded from, the calculation of remuneration.

2.7 Clause 7 of the Bill amends section 37 of the Act to set the minimum period of notice at one week during the first six months of employment and to provide that a collective agreement may reduce the period of notice of employers who have worked for more than one year, to not less than two weeks.

2.8 Clause 8 of the Bill amends section 41 of the Act so that employees whose contracts of employment are terminated in terms of section 38 of the Insolvency Act, 1936 (Act No. 24 of 1936), when their employer is sequestrated or liquidated are entitled to severance pay.

2.9 Clause 9 of the Bill amends section 50 of the Act to—

- * include maternity leave as a condition of employment that cannot be varied by a Ministerial determination;
- * allow the Minister to vary the 45-hour week on condition that ordinary hours of work, overtime, meal intervals, rest periods and annual leave are on the whole more favourable than those contained in the Act. A variation may only be granted if there is collective agreement or it is necessitated by the operational circumstances of the sector or applies to the agricultural or private security sectors.

2.10 Clause 10 of the Bill amends section 55 of the Act to—

- * include maternity leave and the prohibition of child and forced labour as conditions of employment that cannot be varied by the Minister through a sectoral determination;
- * allow the Minister to vary the 45-hour week in respect of sectoral determinations in the same circumstances as Ministerial determinations.

2.11 Clause 11 of the Bill amends section 60 of the Act to allow for the appointment of alternate members from organised labour and business to the Employment Conditions Commission.

2.12 Clause 12 of the Bill amends section 68 of the Act to clarify how an inspector may issue a written undertaking.

2.13 Clause 13 of the Bill amends section 69 of the Act to clarify how an inspector may issue a compliance order.

2.14 Clause 14 of the Bill amends section 70 of the Act to clarify the limitations on inspectors issuing compliance orders.

2.15 Clause 15 of the Bill amends section 73 of the Act to align the Act with proposed changes to the Labour Relations Act, 1995 in respect of which it is now proposed that arbitration awards should have the same status as orders of the Labour Court.

2.16 Clause 16 of the Bill amends section 74 of the Act to clarify that a claim in terms of the Act may only be instituted jointly with unfair dismissal proceedings in respect of claims arising in the year before the dismissal.

2.17 Clause 17 of the Bill amends section 75 of the Act to clarify the basis for calculating interest payments.

2.18 Clause 18 of the Bill amends the Act by inserting a new section 77A to confer specific powers on the Labour Court to enforce the Act.

2.19 Clause 19 of the Bill amends section 83 of the Act by—

- * extending the application of provision whereby certain categories of workers can be deemed to be employees for the purposes of any other employment law other than the Unemployment Insurance Act, 1996 (Act No. 30 of 1966);
- * inserting a new section 83A which provides for a series of rebuttable presumptions concerning proof of whether an employment relationship exists, provides for NEDLAC to issue a Code of Good Practice in this regard and for the CCMA to issue an advisory award about whether persons involved in particular work arrangements are employees or not.

2.20 Clause 20 of the Bill amends section 87 of the Act to permit a Code of Good Practice issued in terms of the Act to provide that it be taken into account when any employment law is interpreted or applied.

2.21 Clause 21 of the Bill amends Schedule 3 of the Act to deem wage determinations to be sectoral determinations with effect from six months of the Act coming into effect to enable them to be enforced in terms of the Act.

2.22 Clause 22 of the Bill amends schedule 3 to the Act.

2.23 Clause 23 of the Bill provides for the short title and the date of commencement of the Bill.
